BIOGRAPHY OF THE LATE OBAAPANIN DEBORAH ASAA MENSAH

Popularly Known as Yaa Asaa

Today, with heavy hearts but with gratitude to God for a life well lived, we tell the story of our beloved mother, grandmother, relative and friend, Obaapanin Deborah Asaa Mensah, affectionately known by many as Yaa Asaa.

Maame Yaa was born on 1st January 1935, at Asamang Tamfoe, to Opanin Kwasi Mensah of Wiemoase in the Ashanti Region and Maame Yaa Bruku of Asamang Tamfoe, both of blessed memory. She was the last of three children.

Her journey through life began with experiences that demanded strength from her at an early age. Following the passing of her mother, her father took Maame Yaa and her two siblings to Wiemoase, where he cared for and raised them. She remained with her father until his own passing.

After the loss of both parents, life could easily have overwhelmed her. But Maame Yaa was a woman of remarkable resilience. With the support and guidance of her uncle, the late Opanin Kwabena Afriyie of Asuofa Akyease in the Ashanti Region, she found the courage to continue building her life.

Through the help of her uncle, Maame Yaa was given some seed money with which she began trading. What may have started modestly became part of a lifetime characterised by hard work, determination and perseverance. She later moved to Asamang Tamfoe, where she continued her trading activities and also took up farming.

She worked with her hands, faced the uncertainties of life with courage, and carried on through both joyful and difficult seasons.

Maame Yaa was blessed with five children, two of whom sadly preceded her in death. Through her children, grandchildren, relatives and the many lives she encountered along the way, her story continued to grow far beyond herself.

Behind the simple life she lived was a woman who had endured loss, change, responsibility and the many challenges that come with a long journey through this world. Yet, through it all, she kept moving forward.

HER RELIGIOUS LIFE

Maame Yaa's spiritual journey was also an important part of her life. She was born into the Presbyterian Church. After the passing of her mother and her move to Wiamease with her father, she joined him in worship at the Salvation Army.

While at Achiase, where her uncle, Opanin Kwabena Afriyie, lived, she joined the Seventh-day Adventist Church. When she later returned from Asofa Achiase, she went back to worshipping with the Salvation Army.

Her search for God continued throughout the different seasons of her life. She later converted to Islam and faithfully worshipped at the Anyinam Mosque for more than fifteen years.

In time, she attended the Reformed Adventist Church at Asamang Tamfoe with her cousins. Eventually, her spiritual journey led her back to the Seventh-day Adventist faith, where she finally settled at the Seventh-day Adventist Bethel Church at Asamang Tamfoe.

TRIBUTE BY

BY SDA CHURCH -BETHEL TO THE LATE OBAAPANIN DEBORAH ASAA MENSAH

Popularly Known as Yaa Asaa

The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it (John 1: 5).

Lawrence Darmani, in his novel titled “Grief Child,” states that the light struggles with darkness to claim the life of a man. We live in a painful world, where death claims the lives of our loved ones, but Jesus, being our light, will continue to shine and overcome every darkness, including death, on our behalf. Today, darkness has fallen on Our Mother, Madam Deborah Asaa Mensah, but we strongly believe that her light will shine on the resurrection morning.

Madam Deborah Asaa Mensah, popularly known as Yaa Asaa, served God diligently as a member of Bethel Church. She exhibited unwavering faith in Christ even amid ill health from old age. Her active service showed how proud she was of her Creator and her Seventh-day Adventist heritage. In church, she offered herself as a mother to everyone and showed us, particularly the youth, ways we can manoeuvre through this dark and wretched time.

She was particularly concerned about the spiritual plights of the whole congregation and offered help on how we can salvage ourselves from this sinful world.

But death cannot erase the life she lived.

It cannot erase the sacrifices she made.

It cannot erase the children she raised, the family she helped build, the people whose lives crossed hers, or the memories she leaves behind.

For ninety-one years, God gave us Maame Yaa.

And although no number of years would ever have been enough for those who loved her, we are grateful that we had the privilege of sharing this life with her.

Today, we do not only mourn because she has left us. We also give thanks because she was here.

She lived.

She worked.

She endured.

She loved.

She worshipped.

And she became an irreplaceable part of our family history.

Maame Yaa, your journey on earth is complete. The hands that worked for so many years may now rest. The feet that travelled life's long road may now be still. The struggles of this world are over.

Your children will remember you.

Your grandchildren will remember you.

Your family will remember you.

And generations who come after you will hear your name and know that once, there lived a woman called Yaa Asaa, whose life became part of the foundation upon which their own lives were built.

Though our hearts are heavy today, we take comfort in the hope that death is not the end.

Maame Yaa, rest peacefully in the bosom of the Lord.

You have fought your fight.

You have finished your journey.

You have gone ahead of us.

And until the day when we meet again, your memory will remain forever in our hearts.

Damirifa Due, Maame Yaa.

Due ne Amanehunu.

Due, Yaa Asaa.

Till we meet again.

There, on 11th March 2017, Maame Yaa was baptised.

The words of 1 John 4:1 remind us:

“Dear friends, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are from God, because many false prophets have gone out into the world.”

For Maame Yaa, faith was a journey. Through different places, different seasons and different experiences, she continued seeking God until she found the spiritual home in which she remained for the rest of her earthly life.

She became an active member of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, faithfully participating in church activities and fellowship for as long as her strength allowed.

HER FINAL JOURNEY

After ninety-one years of life — years filled with joy and sorrow, work and sacrifice, loss and perseverance, family and faith — Maame Yaa's earthly journey finally came to an end.

On 14th July 2026, she passed away peacefully at home.

And just like that, a life that began on 1st January 1935 came quietly to its earthly close.

Today, her familiar presence is no longer among us.

There will be moments when we will instinctively look for her and remember that her seat is empty. There will be family gatherings where her absence will speak louder than words. There will be stories about the past in which her name will naturally appear, because for so many years, she was part of the story of this family.

Conti.....

She really enjoyed sabbath services and was particularly fond of hymn 524 (Tis So Sweet to Trust in Jesus). Indeed, we have lost a mother, an advisor, a councillor, a friend in Christ, and a strong pillar of the church.

Our hearts are saddened as a church because a precious soul is claimed by death. Today we pay our last respects to our dear mother, Madam Deborah Asaa Mensah. We admire the beautiful moments we shared with her, and we will surely miss her.

This painful world will continue to be cruel to us, but Christ has a special place for us as believers, and with such hope, we know that we shall see our mother again on the resurrection morning. However, until then, may her soul rest in peace.
